FROM THE BOARD CHAIR

Dr. James Mello
Chair of the Executive Board

Greetings CCMA Benefactors,

Thank you for your ongoing support. A vibrant campus ministry is transformational in the lives of individuals and to the climate and culture of an institution, whether public, private, large, or small.

Campus ministers are some of the most innovative people there are! They are always seeking to find new ways to engage and reach new people and populations. Innovation is focused on reconsidering the status quo and exploring alternative methods to achieving desired outcomes.

The innovations by CCMA and campus ministers we have seen as a result of the COVID pandemic have helped drive new approaches, programming, and initiatives to serve and accompany students. We can't thank you enough for supporting this important work.

FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dr. Michael St. Pierre
Executive Director

The 2021-2022 academic year was another example of the richness of higher education. From pivoting out of a covid-mindset and into a space of innovation, Catholic campus ministry led the way.

Your support made our resources for campus ministry professionals a reality. From dozens of Office Hours to our Fall Symposium on Mental Health to the Winter Webinar, our national conference (CALLED22) and finally the 1-5th year training program (LAUNCH), we deployed professional development for those on the frontlines: chaplains and campus ministers.

We are so grateful for the many ways in which you put faith into action through your prayerful and financial support of our work. Thank you.

ARCHBISHOP BERNARD HEBDA

Archdiocese of Saint Paul and Minneapolis

FROM CCMA'S EPISCOPAL MODERATOR

“Having benefited from excellent campus ministry when I was a student, and having experienced both the excitement and the challenges of campus ministry early in my priesthood, I see the Church’s apostolic outreach on campus as being vitally important. I am extremely grateful to have this opportunity to collaborate in CCMA’s work in support of campus ministers and the students that they so generously serve.”

CHALLENGING THE STATUS QUO

Here’s what I tell my students: There’s only one way. Pick up your cross and follow Him. There are a lot of people offering a lot of ways to follow Christ right now. There is only one way to follow Christ and that is to pick up your cross and follow Him intimately. What our generation doesn’t need are more Christian/Catholic lifestyle coaches offering physical, mental, emotional, social, or economic gain with a little bit of Jesus on the side. The scriptures are clear. To live is Christ to die is gain.

It does not matter how disciplined you are if you're not truly a disciple.

- Your alarm clock will not save you.
- Your education will not save you.
- Your diet will not save you.
- Your investments will not save you.
- Your assets will not save you.
- Your social network will not save you.

If you’re not careful you’ll find yourself worshipping discomfort and self-discipline instead of Christ. Ask yourself this question, “am I more focused on myself or on Him?” Western civilization is already obsessed with itself; the bride of Christ (the Church) doesn’t need to be.

WHY I GIVE

John J. Tenaglia

In today's society, college students are walking away from their Catholic faith in droves during their college years. Catholic Campus ministry is vital to the formation of these young adults, during their college journey to combat the rise of secularism and to allow students to understand how living out their faith will help them to find joy and a larger purpose for their lives. For me, participating in campus ministry during college not only helped me deepen my faith, but it was where I met my wife of now twenty years and a close priest friend. I participated in a life changing mission trip through my experience with Catholic Campus Ministry with Father Dennis, who later married my wife and baptized several of our children.

CCMA is an organization committed to bringing the message of Christ and the sacraments to college students. It is a tremendous blessing to be a monthly supporter of CCMA and the powerful mission it lives every day in serving young adults throughout the country. There is no better way to help evangelize and support today's next generation of Catholics than to become a monthly Campus Influencer through supporting CCMA.
